

TRUNK SEAT

The unconventional, conversational centrepiece.

Multi-functional by design, rebelling against the norm. An open-ended side table-meets-seat featuring raw finishes and natural markings, hand-carved from a colossal log. Details to be explored from every angle.

Working from a 50-year-old trunk of aged teak, the seat is the responsibility of a single woodworker, dedicated to carving and crafting the intricate details. Unique in its size, the log must be large enough to build this seat in its entirety. Sanded by hand to smooth every surface, it is finished with a black lacquer for a semi-lustrous appearance. A piece of skilled craftsmanship, conducted over six weeks from beginning to end.
